MONEY MARKET.

TUESDAY, April 6—P. M.

The stock market this morning presented much more activity than has been noticeable for some days past. Very heavy amounts of the prominent fancies changed hands, and prices closed generally from one to two per cent better than they opened, with eager buyers at the advance. The purchases were for the most part made by the well known commission brokers, and therefore vindicate what we have for some days intimated was probable—that the outside public, satisfied with the decline that has taken place in the leading specialties, are again coming in as buyers. There are indications on every side which remind the operator of the period of calm which followed New Year, when the whole board, having been bearish for some weeks, slowly suffered the outside public to win them over to the bull side, and aided the rise in stocks. It looks as though the market was going through the same phase again. There are now rumors, however, for a rise which did not exist then. The earnings of the principal roads, as, for instance, the New York Central, show an increase for the first days of April. There are quite a large body of shorts which necessarily will create a demand that will help the market. Money is certain to run easily throughout the summer; it can hardly be worth over two per cent in London, and four per cent here. Finally, the merchants are collecting their means, and unless they intend to dispose of the income they usually derive from the use of them, they will be driven to use them in the stock market. For these reasons many of the most experienced authorities are predicting a small rise in the stock market.

There was a very active business in all the speculative railroad stocks, principally on time. Erie was operated in to a very large amount, but was not sustained at the opening price. The first sale this morning was at 22 per cent, and the last at 21 1/4, cash. Galena and Chicago was in demand to day at better prices. The reports current a few days since regarding the dividend, referred to a statement previously made, that an extra dividend would be paid in May. The company never anticipated anticipating the regular dividend day, and all such reports have originated in Wall street, and are put forth solely for stock jobbing purposes. The next regular annual dividend of the Galena road comes due in August, and it will be paid at that time, unless something of an extraordinary character should occur now.

There was quite an active movement in the Southern family and extra.
